Elkus Urges Free Speech

Judge Abram I. Elkus, of the Court of Appeais, and Justice Isaac N. Mills, of the Supreme Court, spoke last night at the twenty-second annual dinner of the Westchester County Bar Association at the Hotel Commodore. About 250 attended the dinner, "While we should punish violations of the law and seditious speech," said Judge Elkus, "we should permit men and women to discuss properly and within legal limits their views of public events. There is an intolerance in refusing to listen which should be avoided and discouraged. The bar should encourage listening. One of the fundamental essentials of democracy is the attitude of listening, is the willingness to discuss, the willingness to discuss the property of the country, according to Dr. Mecker, possesses no comprehensive program for the reduction of hie cost of living.
